

Dear Colleagues,

With the increasing number of individuals diagnosed with Autism Spectrum Disorder (ASD), you may find yourself looking for new services or resources to help your clients.

The Autism Society of Minnesota (AuSM) would like to offer your organization and clientele our support to better serve the autism community. In addition to the direct services we provide to individuals with ASD and their families, we are interested in developing partnerships with community providers who may be serving those diagnosed with ASD. Our experienced therapists are available to consult with you to determine the needs of your organization, staff, and clientele including training in specialized techniques and interventions.

We understand the increased need for ASD-specific services and have recently expanded our Mental Health practice, enabling us to reach more individuals, families, and organizations. We provide therapeutic services to children, adults, couples, families, and groups.

Some of the services we offer include:

- Diagnostic evaluations
- Functional and behavioral assessments
- Individual and family counseling, including sibling issues
- Play therapy
- Couples and marriage counseling, including grief and loss issues
- Parent and caregiver training, including stress and coping strategies
- Specialized group therapy
- ASD support groups
- Training for organizations and service providers

We share a personal understanding of autism – each of our therapists has a child or spouse living with autism. We work with the entire support system including parents, siblings, extended family, staff and caregivers, and serve all ages from early childhood through adulthood. We are also an approved MA service provider.

Contact us regarding this exciting opportunity to meet the ongoing needs of your organization and our growing autism community. We look forward to working with you.
